

The Royal College of Pathologists
Pathology: the science behind the cure

Pregnancy

Pathology isn't just about diagnosing serious diseases; it also helps keep mothers and babies healthy during pregnancy.

Pathologists are responsible for antenatal and newborn screening tests, blood tests to check iron levels and blood group as well as identifying and treating any infection so that they don't cause problems.