

The Royal College of Pathologists
Pathology: the science behind the cure

Forensics

Forensic pathology is probably the best known of all the pathology specialties but it is one of the smallest in terms of numbers of practitioners.

Forensic pathology is the discipline of pathology concerned with the investigation of deaths where there are medico-legal implications, for example, suspected homicides or death in custody.