

The Royal College of Pathologists

Pathology: the science behind the cure

Zoo

When you visit the zoo you might not think about who diagnoses illnesses in animals. But animals need pathologists too!

Veterinary pathologists provide the same service for animals that NHS pathologists provide for humans - whether it's a blood test, examining a tumour removed during an operation or performing an autopsy to find out why the animal died.