The College

This College has a key role in the professional aspects of pathology services in the development and delivery of healthcare. Those holding office in the College provide professional leadership and thereby contribute at a national level to the maintenance and development of pathology services and the quality of care that patients receive. The College expects its office holders to be proactive and to provide leadership, not only in their own specialty, but also in pathology in general, in the wider context of health services. The College's influence extends to all sectors of healthcare provision.

The College is its membership, and the coordination, coherence and consistency between national, regional and local activities is paramount. All office holders are expected to subscribe to these principles. The Honorary Officers play a key role and work together to ensure coherent College advice and guidance across the areas of College activity at the international, national, regional and local levels through the College Directors, the English Regional representatives. Devolved Nation representatives provide the professional leadership within their region. The College also provides advice and guidance on specialty-specific issues nationally, regionally and locally. The Specialty Advisory Committees provide professional leadership within their specialty.

Summary of the role

The Wales Regional Council Member will provide professional leadership within their region. Members will use their skills and experience to make sure the Wales Regional Council runs efficiently and delivers against its Terms of Reference.

In between formal meetings, much of the committee work is dealt with electronically. The post holder is expected to respond to electronic requests. To facilitate Job Planning for those involved, most College formal commitments are scheduled for the same day each week.

Post-holders are expected to attend Wales Regional Council meetings (three times a year), the annual symposium (usually in June), and support Regional Council work on a regular basis.

Members will support the Wales Regional Council Chair in providing advice to local NHS and other healthcare providers on provision of pathology services and on acceptable standards of practice approved by the College.

In addition, they will:

- Represent the College on outside bodies, where appropriate, as agreed by the Regional Council.
- Review the Council's regional structure as and when appropriate.
- Develop working relationships with a range of external partners in relation to Pathology in Wales.
- Advise the Regional Council on local problems affecting standards of practice in pathology where there are wider implications for Wales.
- Support the organisation of local educational and social events as appropriate.
- Communicate locally with members, Fellows and Trainees as appropriate.
